as we see it

The Theater Owners of America, may their tribe increase, have officially denied any interest in exclusive television rights to World Series baseball games.

Present network arrangements for the Series expire in 1956, and it was reported that efforts were underway to take the games off free television and tie them up for the theaters—which would, of course, charge admission to see the games on big-screen television.

In a far-sighted and certainly intelligent public relations move, the theater owners' organization asserted it not only wasn't interested in the Series for movie houses, but stood four-square behind the principle of free television.

There were, it is reported, three good reasons why the statement was issued.

First, the theater owners knew how incensed the public would be if they grabbed the baseball classic and charged admission to see games the public has seen without charge ever since television came into being.

Second, the theater owners are fighting toll television, and if they decided to televise the World Series for admission fees they would be destroying their own arguments against pay-as-you-see TV.

And third, the theater TV outfit didn't stand a very good chance of getting exclusive rights to the World Series, anyway. Organized baseball is quite sensitive to public reaction, and the team owners aren't about to take away what most viewers feel is an inalienable right—the chance to see the World Series free.

Still, it's good to know that the Theater Owners of America have good public relations sense and are willing to sacrifice a chance to profit, for the sake of keeping the public happy.

NEW YORK Bob Stahl reports:

JACKIE GLEASON has suspended filming on his Honeymooners until Dec. 13. Official explanation is that the cast, which has been filming two episodes each week since August, is overworked, and GLEASON decided to give everybody a vacation now instead of in January as originally planned. GLEASON and CBS insist that Honeymooners will continue on film and will not shift to live, as has been rumored.

Honeymooners, in fact, picked up a rating point over the competing Perry Como Show in the latest Trendex report, although COMO's first half-hour was still almost 10 points ahead of the competing Stage Show.

NBC's The Big Surprise doubled its rating the night that New York Police Lt. BARNEY ARLUCK tried for and missed the $100,000 jackpot. Its rating was 15.3, compared to 19.5 for CBS' Beat the Clock . . . MAUREEN ARTHUR, 20-year-old blonde singer from St. Louis and first winner of GARRY MOORE's talent search, may join GARRY's show.

In the biggest sale yet of a TV play to the movies, ROBERT ALAN AURTHUR will receive $100,000, plus a percentage of the profits, for his "Shadow of a Champ," telecast originally on TV Playhouse. The movie will star KIRK DOUGLAS.

DAN DAILEY set to star in "Wonderful World," original musical comedy by ARTHUR SCHWARTZ and HOWARD DIETZ, which is scheduled for Ford Star Jubilee around Christmas . . . STEVE ALLEN adding to his many chores by lecturing at literary teas since the publication of his short stories, "Fourteen for Tonight."

TYRONE POWER, set for a LIEBMAN review next spring, also may star in an original musical for Producers' Showcase, with KAY STARR and LOUIS ARMSTRONG, in March or April . . . On Christmas Day, You Are There presents "Washington Crossing the Delaware" --exactly 179 years after it happened . . . On Dec. 4 Wide Wide World's "American Rhapsody" offers "roads leading to music."

While New York's Mayor ROBERT WAGNER has been arguing with his police commissioner over the opening of the Police Department files for TV programs, BRODERICK CRAWFORD jumped the gun by obtaining permission to base some of his Highway Patrol episodes on New York police files.

The professor: Bergen Evans in New York Public Library, his happy hunting ground.

HOW Bergen Evans, Ph.D.

PICKS THE $64,000 QUESTIONS

Whatever else it takes to work your way into the stratospheric regions on The $64,000 Question, you must have one fine memory. In fact, the man who makes up the questions for the show, Dr. Bergen Evans, doesn't believe the program is a test of knowledge at all. "Memory is the thing," he confides.

Evans, for years English literature professor at Chicago's Northwestern University, has been skipping around the country (Chicago to New York and back) and around the networks (from ABC's Down You Go to CBS for The $64,000 Question). Of late, his new way of life has become frustrating.

There are more questions he cannot ask than he can ask. Of those he can, half turn out to be too easy or too difficult; obscure or provocative. Before the show got under way last summer, the professor spent three weeks compiling topics and questions. Since that time, some categories were found to be "booby traps" (Men Called Sam) because there were no reference books to hand contestants passing the $16,000 level; others needed narrowing (mythology and history).

A brilliant, dynamic man, the professor does not consider himself an expert in all fields. He knows little about jazz and nothing about baseball, two categories compiled by outside authorities. For all other classifications, he prefers to think of himself as a "good research man."

The associate producer of the show, Mert Koplin, laughs at Evans' modesty, adding, "The man is a Biblical authority, is writing a dictionary on contemporary American usage of words and knows literature the way a professor of the subject should. He could pull whole series of questions out of his head without once reaching for a book." However, Evans reaches for books often, and no question is used if the answer cannot be authoritatively verified.

Sometimes a question, although verified, brings complaints. One such: Who posed for the famous Mona Lisa painting? Qualified art critics said Lisa del Giocondo; but one critic insisted the model was either Da Vinci's mistress or a small boy. continued

Final Decision Is Not On Evans' Conscience

In the category, Food, Evans wanted an expert to identify the parts of the animal from which come the various cuts of meat. "I couldn't ask that because the question suggests slaughtering of the animal." He paused and added sardonically, "Everyone knows that brisket of beef comes wrapped in cellophane in the supermarket."

Queries about recipes were rejected because a contestant might say, "And then I stir in a half pound of plaster of Paris. At least, that's the way it's done in my family." Observed Evans, "We'd have a terrible time disproving that."

A fair question, according to the professor, is one which asks for information an expert in the field would be reasonably expected to know. "If we had asked Captain McCutchen (who won $64,000) to describe foods served during the first Ming Dynasty, we may have baffled him. But the question would have been unreasonable."

Evans explained that he doesn't select the final questions used. When a category is decided upon, he draws up 200 questions, graded in difficulty. "The first one has to be easy," he said. "If a man failed the $64 question, it would be like getting a flat tire at his own funeral."

The 200 questions are then sifted by Evans, Steve Carlin, the executive producer, and Koplin. A final 66 are chosen, or six for each of the 11 steps leading to the top. Each, technically, is equally difficult. Carlin and Koplin select one of the six. "That's a decision," Evans said, "which I'm happy not to have on my conscience."

The category, the Bible, turned out to be a sore point for Evans, who said, "As a child, I had the Bible drilled into me. Yet, I wasn't able to ask a single scholarly question on interpretation. An intelligent question would be, 'Tell the difference in the Ten Commandments from the Old Testament as stated by Roman Catholics and as stated by the Protestants.' It seems it could come as a great shock to many Protestants and Catholics that there is a difference* and would raise protests. So I was stuck with asking for such things as the names of the Disciples."

Evans' idea of a real contest would be to bring on a renowned scholar, quiz him on his specialty and throw him to the wolves. "There isn't a man alive who couldn't be stumped by a question in his field."

To prove his theory, he asked his university colleagues if they would appear on the show as the accompanying expert whom the contestant is allowed to consult for the final, $64,000 question. All said, "No." The reasoning: If the contestant turned to the expert for help and if the expert let him down, the blow would be terrible. The expert has too much to lose and not enough to gain.

"In fact," Evans said, "viewers don't like real experts. That's why I'm not seen on this show. Hal March is a good emcee because people identify themselves with him. He couldn't answer any more questions than the average viewer could. But I would be looked down upon as the professor sneering at the common man. If we get a Harvard professor as contestant, I could emcee. All I would have to do is butcher him and everyone would cheer for me."—Kathy Pedell

The apparent difference is chiefly a matter of numbering. The First Commandment as stated by Protestants is: "I am the Lord thy God; thou shalt have no other gods before me." The Second is: "Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image . . ." Roman Catholics combine these two in their First Commandment. The Protestants' 10th Commandment is: "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house . . . nor his wife, nor his (property)." Catholics count this as two Commandments. Thus both religions have the same total number of Commandments. There also is some difference in phrasing.*

Your TV set may be 7 times better than you think!

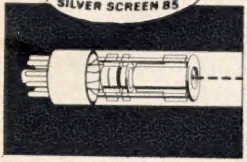
Sylvania "Silver Screen 85" picture tube gives you a brighter, clearer picture, with greater depth, dimension and detail

Now you can get "modern set performance" from your present TV set, simply by having your serviceman install a Sylvania "Silver Screen 85" picture tube. That's because the "Silver Screen 85" has features that make ordinary picture tubes out-of-date. In the "Silver Screen 85," picture brilliance has been nearly doubled. Picture contrast has been increased 7 times. With the set you now have, this fine picture tube will give you the picture performance of a modern set. So, when a new picture tube is called for, ask your TV serviceman for a "Sylvania Silver Screen 85."

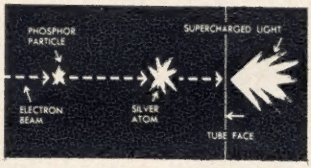
Look for this name on the face

SYLVANIA SILVER SCREEN 85

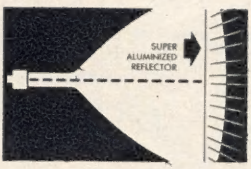
The picture tube with . . .



1. Precision-Focus Electron Gun—Improved electron gun energizes entire screen in pin-point detail. Picture is sharper, clearer.



2. Silver-Activated Screen—Millions of light-producing atoms of silver are added to the screen phosphors to achieve a higher level of picture contrast.



3. Super-Aluminized Reflector—Picture light, previously lost inside the tube, is reflected out toward you. Picture is sparkling bright.

Ever notice that most of your TV set troubles are caused by the receiving tubes? Sylvania receiving tubes are noted for long and trouble-free service. Next time ask your serviceman for "Sylvania." They cost no more than ordinary tubes.

These Gals Work-Too

Although Looking Beautiful Is The Major Part Of The Job

Bud Collyer (center) beams as Janice Gilbert doles out dollars on Break the Bank.

There's nothing like a pretty face to spruce up an audience participation or panel show. At least that's the theory on programs like The $64,000 Question, Beat the Clock, Stop the Music, Dollar a Second, Masquerade Party, Break the Bank, The Big Surprise.

Although the primary function of these girls is to look beautiful, they do have other duties. On The $64,000 Question, for instance, Lynn Dollar introduces the contestants to emcee

Hal March, punches the IBM machine, and pops people into the sound-proof cage for high-value questions. Three lovely ladies telephone contestants on Stop the Music. Evelyn Patrick deals out stunts and loot on Dollar a Second. Carolyn Stroupe aids Jack Barry on The Big Surprise. On Beat the Clock, Beverly Bentley (subbing for Roxanne) introduces the guests to Bud Collyer, takes their pictures (there really is film in that camera) and hands out prizes. Janice Gilbert distributes prize money on Break the Bank. And on Masquerade Party, Renee's big job is to tell the time.

It's very nice work if you can get it.

Renee tells Masquerade Party panelists when they've run out of guessing time.

Beauty. Lisa Montell plays Rosa in Warner Bros. Presents 'Cheyenne' segment Tuesday, ABC.

P.S.

Woman Shocks Emcee, Spurns Try For $5000

TV 'First.' The new TV programming trend toward jacking up the jackpots received a jolt the other day that probably rocked the gray flannel-clad men in the Nation's network and agency offices.

Their faith in the lure of easy money was shattered by a woman contestant on CBS' Name That Tune.

Mrs. Jueneman

Invited by emcee George DeWitt to return the following week to try to up her winnings—without any risk—from $2500 to $5000, Mrs. August Jueneman, of Rexford, Kan., struck an unprecedented blow at the very foundations of the TV giveaway shows.

'Oh, no,' was her historic reply. 'I have to sing in my church choir.'

While disbelief spread through living rooms from coast to coast, DeWitt stared, open-mouthed, at Mrs. Jueneman, a farmer's wife with six children, whose husband earns $2200 a year.

Seems Mrs. Jueneman had a previous date in connection with a mission at the Sacred Heart Church in Selden, Kan.

After the show, producer Harry Salter tried to salvage something from the wreckage by asking if her oldest daughter could substitute for her.

'Oh, no,' was the response. 'She plays the organ.' 'Well,' Salter persisted, 'what about your husband?' 'He leads the choir!'

So Salter arranged for comedian Phil Silvers to team with contestant Louis Brugnolotti, of Rockaway Beach, N.Y. Together, they earned the extra $2500 for Mrs. Jueneman. . . . But who says there are no more surprises on TV?

Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra have been signed to appear on the annual ~~Christmas Hour~~ which Ch. 6 will originate on Thursday, Dec. 15, at 9 P.M. A number of top-flight stars will also appear on the show.

Lynne Barrett and Charley Dobson are holding open house Saturday night, for members of the Pennsylvania Mask and Wig Club at 11:30 on Ch. 3. The collegians will offer a medley from their new show, "Vamp Till Ready."

Violinist Jack Benny is coming here. He'll team with famed musician Isaac Stern at a dinner Dec. 4 at the Bellevue-Stratford, proceeds going to Bonds of Israel.

Viewers in the Harrisburg area have indicated wide approval of TV GUIDE's listing of network shows on local stations there. Network listings are carried for: Ch. 27, WCMB-TV; Ch. 55, WHP-TV; Ch. 71, WTPA. Ch. 27, incidentally, has arranged to carry all Palestra basketball telecasts via Ch. 12. Other Pennsylvania stations may join the net.

Patches, the former Ch. 10 balladeer now on Ch. 57, Easton, recently made an appearance on George Skinner's New York show. It won him a spot on the CBS network show, Captain Kangaroo, Nov. 17.

A free trip to Disneyland is in store for some area youngster who writes the best letter describing the favorite feature of Gimbels Toyland Parade. The Cisco Kid will escort the winner on a tour of Hollywood. Full details in next week's issue.

Several "name" guests coming to town. Alan Scott entertains Martha Rountree of Meet the Press fame on his Ch. 3 morning show Nov. 22; Ed McMahon greets Warren Hull of Strike It Rich on Thanksgiving eve on Ch. 10.

Top schoolboy athletes throughout the Delaware Valley are visiting Bob Horn's Bandstand on Ch. 6 these afternoons to urge support for the Olympic Fund.

The controversial subject of a high school instructor who teaches Communism will be discussed on Ch. 3's Progress Saturday at 12:30 P.M.

David Kaigler, Jr., whose Sunday show was a feature of early local TV, is the new general manager of Ch. 12.

COLOR Capt. Queeg is master of the minesweeper and destroyer "Caine." His executive officer, Lt. Maryk, regards Queeg as a liar and a bully, and as mentally unbalanced. When a typhoon roars down on the ship Maryk takes command by force.

The play opens with Maryk facing a court-martial. But the trial resolves itself primarily into a no-holds-barred attempt, on the part of Greenwald, Maryk's attorney, to expose Queeg as a psychopath.

Herman Wouk wrote the play, which ran on Broadway last year, based on his own novel. Prizes were awarded both to the play and to Lloyd Nolan who appeared in it, as did nearly everyone in tonight's cast. Paul Gregory produced it in unorthodox fashion, as he has again tonight; and Charles Laughton rehearsed tonight's players, though the directorial reins were held by Franklin Schaffner.

4:00 3 4:30 8 HALLMARK HALL OF FAME—Drama

COLOR Maurice Evans presents "The Devil's Disciple," by George Bernard Shaw, starring Maurice Evans, Ralph Bellamy, Teresa Wright and Dennis King.

Dick Dudgeon is the local scapegrace in the New Hampshire community of Yankees where he lives. Even his own mother becomes fed up with the way he flouts the cardinal rules of good sense, good manners and good religion, and throws him out of the house. Judith, Parson Anderson's pretty wife, also has a low opinion of Dick. But Shaw proves Dick's heart is in the right place, for he's kind to a poor, belabored servant girl, and, it being the time of the American Revolution, he shortly becomes a Yankee hero!

"The Devil's Disciple" is one of Shaw's "Plays for Puritans," meaning a popular sort of play, but one in which love doesn't make the world go round. The famous Richard Mansfield introduced this satire on conventional morality to the U. S. in 1897, in Albany, N. Y. Maurice Evans produced it on Broadway five years ago. Then as now Dennis King co-starred with Evans as Gen. "Gentleman Johnny" Burgoyne of His Majesty's forces, based on the historical figure.

7:30 (6) (57) (71) MOVIE — "The Lavender Hill Mob"

Alec Guinness and Stanley Holloway

Mr. Holland is just an ordinary worker at the bank, in charge of gold shipments. In fact he is so precise about every last speck of gold dust being accounted for, his colleagues tend to regard him as a ridiculous old fuddyduddy. But behind this prissy exterior, Holland for years has been evolving an ingenious and, as he conceives it, foolproof scheme for relieving the bank of a fortune in gold.

Only one detail remains to be filled in: How shall he dispose of the gold once it's stolen? The answer to his gaudy dreams appears in the form of a manufacturer of souvenirs.

Alec Guinness stars as Holland, Stanley Holloway as his accomplice, in the TV debut of this 1951 movie, which helped to establish Guinness's reputation in this country as a versatile master of subtle English comedy. Audrey Hepburn appears briefly as a Latin beauty.

SPECIAL A Philadelphia tradition for 35 years, the parade today officially welcomes Santa Claus here. He will be joined by 5000 marchers, 22 bands, 55 floats and an estimated one million persons as he moves down Broad St. to Spruce, back to City Hall and east on Market St. to Gimbels. The telecast starts at 10:15 A.M. from Gimbels Toyland. Fifteen minutes later, Gene and Joan Crane begin describing the 90-minute parade for viewers from City Hall, site of the reviewing stand. Strike It Rich turns over its time at 11:30 to bring the telecast to the Nation. Warren Hull and Ralph Paul will narrate 30 minutes of the proceedings. At noon, Santa will be shown arriving in Toyland. Stars of this year's parade include: Duncan "Cisco Kid" Renaldo and Robin "Dagmar" Morgan of the Mama show.

Taylor

COLOR This new work by the author of "Patterns" investigates the current Hollywood scene. The play opens in a Hollywood office. The decor is gaudy and pretentious, and so is the man behind the desk. He is Art Shaddick, formerly a writer, now a writer's agent. On the bookcase reposes an Oscar, won by Art for his last picture. That was in 1929. Since then he has gone steadily downhill, shouting all the way. When suddenly a young writer appears with a great script, it is just what Art needs, a golden opportunity to rise again to greatness. Benny Fiddles— And No One Burns

Jack Takes Everything In Stride

"Jack Benny," a Vine Street regular mused recently, "is the kind of guy every kid should have as an uncle. He's as honest and comfortable as an old shoe. He's decent. He laughs at even the most terrible jokes—the kind kids are full of. He could even get 'em interested in their violin lessons. And he's rich without making a big thing of it."

The description is a fair, if incomplete, analysis of the man generally regarded as the top man in his business, which is comedy. The Gleasons and the Berles get the wild applause, the fabulous contracts (less taxes), the big headlines—and the ulcers. But it is Benny to whom continued the trade defers, whose opinion is sought, whose contract is not to be sneezed at, whose show is consistently in the Top 10—and whose health is excellent. That he simply is not built along the human-dynamo lines of a Berle or a Gleason is quite probably the happiest thing that ever happened to him. Or didn't happen.

"Benny," a close associate once remarked of him, "is the kind who will be sitting in a hotel room with his press agent and suddenly want breakfast—and who will reach over for the phone and call Room Service himself. Forty-nine out of 50 comics wouldn't dream of doing that—unless they wanted to put on an act."

The "nice guy" tag has been the kiss of death to more than one performer in a town which thrives on gossip, idiosyncracies and odd characters. Comics, in particular, are prone to be spotlight-hugging extroverts to whom every antic is a potential paragraph in tomorrow's columns. They thrive on adulation—and, for a fact, they need it.

Benny needs it too, but he has never been known to overdose himself. Now 61, he has long since been through the frenetic career-building mill and sits now on the rarefied plateau where a performer is good, knows he's good and will be good on any occasion.

Benny on television has been a trail-blazer from the beginning, but without the customary tub-thumping trappings of the trail-blazer. He was the first to tailor a show to fit the guest star rather than himself, a situation so revolutionary as to leave him still standing pretty much alone.

Nothing, but nothing, can be more upsetting to a comic than to have someone else not only sharing but usurping the spotlight. It has paid off handsomely for Benny, however. No two comics put together can match his line-up of guest stars over the past five years: Helen Hayes, Dinah Shore, Claudette Colbert, Jimmy Stewart, Humphrey Bogart, Liberace, Burns and Allen, Barbara Stanwyck, Bob Hope, Eddie Cantor and Fred Allen, to name some of the bright lights.

Benny also is that rarest of comics, one who can speak in glowing terms of other comics. The majority of them are past masters at belittling. But Benny can be fulsome with his praise.

Benny's secret, aside from being a born comic, a master of timing and a nice guy, was summed up recently in his own words.

"Ya gotta be honest," Benny blurted out. "If a comic situation is basically honest, it's gotta be funny. If I were a lousy violin player, this routine wouldn't be funny. But I'm a pretty good violin player. I'm just good enough to make a fluff look funny."

He was making the fluffs on a $70,000 Stradivarius, loaned by a Los Angeles violin dealer—something of a tribute to Benny's regard for and ability with a violin.

Some months ago the rumor got out that Benny was going to make the move this season from a twice-monthly show to one a week. Benny himself had seriously considered the idea. He was missing out on many of the ratings (taken, in many instances, the week he was off) and had been badgered into half believing he might be losing his impact on the audience.

Fortunately for his sanity, his audience and the quality of his shows, he eventually discarded the idea. He'll stick to every-other-Sunday.

The only concession he made was to sign up for several shows on Shower of Stars, the first of which was "Time Out For Ginger." Because of the extra work, he dropped his radio show, a cornerstone for 21 years.

There is one more "secret" to Jack Benny's success. He wears well, and not only as a performer. Of his four basic writers—Sam Perrin, Al Gordon, George Balzer and Hal Goldman—two have been with him for 12 years. Don Wilson, his announcer, boasts 21 years. Rochester (Eddie Anderson) is a veteran of 17 years. Hilliard Marks, producer of both the TV show and the radio show and a former Benny writer, is now in his 10th season, as is the Sportsmen Quartet. And Ralph Levy, director, has handled the TV show since its inception five years ago.

If there is a performer with more such permanent monuments erected to him as a "Public Benefactor," his name has escaped the historians.

That Wonderful Feeling!

All Of A Sudden, Singer Peggy King Finds Herself On Top Of The World

Peggy King sat in her agent's office and listened to her voice come out of a record player. The song was "Learning to Love."

"Isn't it wonderful?" she murmured between the bars. "I don't think I've ever sung any better."

She smiled at the record player. Her eyes were misty.

"This has been the finest year of my life," she said. "Just think of it—a year ago I was nothing. Nothing! And now . . . ."

And now Peggy had suddenly discovered that everyone thought she was swell. She had been signed to continue her role on The George Gobel Show. She had sung in dozens of night clubs. She was busy making records.

What did it feel like—the sudden heady splash of success—after the long years of hard work?

"Like a dream. Like an impossible dream."

It's real enough now, but it could have been a dream for Peggy when she was home in Ravenna, O., working as a stenographer.

Her career started when she won an amateur singing contest and landed a job with a Cleveland radio station.

After that she sang with Ralph Flanagan's band and made a recording of a commercial jingle for a tomato sauce. Mitch Miller, director of popular music at Columbia Records, heard the ditty and hired her.

Her records (the first one, "Hottentot," sold 100,000 copies) threw Peggy into the spotlight. She began to show up on TV. Then Gobel saw her in a guest spot on The Saturday Night Review, made a mental note of the fact that she was one of the few girls he had ever encountered who didn't make him look like a pigmy by comparison and signed her.

George and Peggy hit it off from the start. "There's some kind of electricity generated when we're on the set together," she said.

There's electricity no matter who is on a set with Gobel, but anyway, Peggy was an immediate hit. Attractive offers came in from night clubs, from other TV shows, from Broadway producers.

"I got my first fur coat," she said. "I got my first jewelry; I never had anything before. I bought my mother a fur coat; she's the best dressed woman in Ravenna now. And I'm sending my father to night school."

How did she account for all this?

"Of course, I'm thankful for my God-given talent," she said firmly. "But I found out also that if you're nice to people, they want to do wonderful things for you."

Was there any truth to reports that she had a fight with Gobel before renewing her contract?

Her lips pinched up into an angry line. She stamped her foot.

"Why, I owe everything to George," she declared. "He has always been swell and patient with me. He always wanted me to come back to the show.

"What a wonderful year," she added softly. "You know, this year I feel I've moved faster and farther than any girl in America . . . And, you know, sometimes it frightens me."

The Big

NBC's The Big Surprise is a conglomeration of patchwork programming whose only possible excuse for being lies in the success of CBS' The $64,000 Question.

In its initial format, The Big Surprise took all the worst features of Question, This Is Your Life and Strike It Rich, putting them together with a fine and total disregard for a maxim once propounded by playwright Moss Hart: The members of an audience may not know—or even care—why a show is wrong, but they certainly know it is wrong.

With its second show, Surprise dropped its emphasis on rewarding

Confidential File

Confidential File is a strange mixture of good reporting and drivel. As produced and narrated by Los Angeles newspaperman Paul Coates, the telefilm series is sometimes absorbing and informative, sometimes gibberish.

Coates introduces a dramatization of his subject, then interviews two or three persons directly concerned, some of whom may be masked to protect their identities. Both the dramatizations and interviews are often starkly gripping, as on a show dealing with teen-age narcotics addiction.

Too often, though, Coates glosses over a subject. Examples: shows on child molesters, phony charity solicitors and crooked "private eyes."—R.S.

Surprise

people who had done good deeds, threw in an "electronic brain" gimmick and took off at a hard gallop toward its one purpose in life: to give away, if humanly possible, $100,000, thus topping the loot given away by "that other show." Trouble is, the other show is a much better one. It got there "fustest with the mostest"—and by "mostest" is meant, not necessarily dollar bills, but careful planning and showmanship.

Surprise's version of Question's Hal March is veteran moderator Jack Barry. On shows like Juvenile Jury, Life Begins at 80 and Winky Dink, Barry has faced probably as varied a collection of TV hazards as anyone in the business. But it's doubtful that even his wealth of experience has prepared him to emerge unscathed from his present assignment.—D.J.

Your TV set is a complex electronic device, with over 1000 parts delicately balanced, one with the other, to give you perfect performance. When one or more of these many parts breaks down, only an expert can put his finger on the trouble without delay and extra expense.

Your TV serviceman has had special training . . . he uses special tools and intricate testing equipment . . . he is experienced. He can spot your trouble and quickly have your set back in order, to bring you full enjoyment. The good TV serviceman is "fussy" about his tools and equipment. He has to be to assure dependable, workmanlike service.

And he's "fussy", too, about the parts he uses. That's why so many TV servicemen use precision-built Mallory Rectifiers, Capacitors, Resistors, and Controls, the same as most TV set manufacturers do. When your TV serviceman does use Mallory parts for your set, you may be sure he's using the very finest.

The One That Didn't Get Away

BUT ROSEMARY DE CAMP WISHES IT HAD

Rosemary DeCamp fishes with the devotion some women lavish on their knitting. She's married (to Judge John Shidler of the Los Angeles County Municipal Court) and the mother of four children. She's also a featured performer on the filmed Bob Cummings Show (as Cummings' sister) and the commercial spieler on Death Valley Days. But she manages a fishing stint at least once a week.

She's been hooked ever since she hooked a 9-foot-4-inch, 110-pound sailfish off Acapulco, Mexico, five years ago. That furnished her biggest thrill—and some headaches to match.

"If I had known what was going to happen," she says today, "I would have thrown that fish right back."

Instead, when she hauled the prize triumphantly aboard, she said enthusiastically to her husband, "Let's have it stuffed." Flushed with victory himself, he agreed.

Once ashore, they discovered there are rules and regulations south of the border which tend to discourage the stuffing and mounting of fish.

Finally, a local politico extracted from the committed and now befuddled Shidlers $175 (American) and indicated the fish would be relayed via a fish-stuffing expert in Florida.

It arrived some three months later. In a piano crate. Shipping charges: $30. Today it hangs, from two large hooks and braced out from the wall, in the Shidler living room.

Rosemary DeCamp examines two salmon grouper landed on one line.

"Not counting the original expense of the trip in the first place," Rosemary says, almost apologetically, "that fish cost us in the neighborhood of $250. We love it, but—!"

Two years later Rosemary caught herself a good-sized marlin. She kept it just long enough to have her picture taken. Today she contents herself with albacore, yellowtail, white sea bass, grouper and an occasional blue shark, all to be taken off the coast 25 miles from Hollywood.

Queen Of The Guest Stars

The queen of the Royal and Ancient Order of TV Guest Stars is a small and almost anonymous lady who neither sings, cracks jokes, throws curves nor has friends in Washington. She is Lorane Cooley, a brunette of remarkable maneuverability, who has made TV guest appearances on about 400 shows in 37 states and Canada.

Lorane represents the California Foods Research Institute, which publicizes native fruits and vegetables. She is one of an army of saleswomen who plug such products as food, nylon stockings, cookbooks and cosmetics on TV. Lorane's province consists of large dry lima beans, canned cling peaches and ripe olives. Her job is to contact TV stars, worm her way onto their shows, and somehow work in lima beans, canned peaches and ripe olives.

In this pursuit she has had singular success. On cooking shows she has made enough lima bean soup to drown the entire city of Toledo, O. She has discussed the culture of the canned peach on home economic programs, debated the economic import of the dry lima bean on newscasts and served ripe olives to a roomful of Hungarian wrestlers on a midnight sports show. She even won a food blender on an audience participation show for supplying a recipe: peach salad smothered in olives.

In her travels (she covered 100,000 miles in 16 months) Lorane carts around enough luggage to stock an expedition to the Upper Wambesi.

Besides a formidable grubstake, she totes a packing case full of knives, wicked claw-like tongs for handling food, hefty rolling pins and cast iron pots and pans. Once, at the Canadian border, she was detained for questioning when a Customs inspector opened the crate and a murderous looking machete popped out. "All right, Dollie," he said icily, "where's the body?"
